

BEHAVIORAL HEALTH WORKFORCE PIPELINE

Build a Career. Strengthen a Family. Support a Community.

12-weeks of Training + Workforce Support + A Pathway to Employment

Ready to begin a new career, return to the workforce, or build on experience you already have? The Behavioral Health Workforce Pipeline combines focused training with practical career support to help local people prepare for meaningful work in behavioral health and family-serving systems.

FREE 12 WEEKS TO BUILD SKILLS, CONFIDENCE + CONNECTIONS

What you can gain

- Practical training for trauma-informed behavioral health and family support settings
- Credential opportunities that can strengthen your qualifications and resume
- Career readiness support, including help preparing for the job search and employment process
- Connections to employers, field experiences, placements, and potential permanent job opportunities

You are supported along the way

This is more than a training course. The Pipeline is designed as a supportive workforce development experience. Participants can receive guidance as they build skills, navigate barriers, prepare for employment, and connect with opportunities in the region.

Potential career paths include peer recovery support, family support, case management, care coordination, community health, school-based support, and other helping professions.

INTERESTED? TAKE THE FIRST STEP TODAY.

Sign up to learn more: <https://bit.ly/4wSu8kk>

Interested but not sure whether the program is right for you? Sign up anyway. We can start a conversation about your goals, options, and available supports.

Want to help support this programming? Visit the link and let us know- community development is always better when it's more collaborative!